

Death at the Indian School.

Luke C. Gorky, a Navajo boy and a pupil of the Indian school, died yesterday evening about 7 o'clock. He suffered from consumption and a severe hemorrhage of the lungs caused death.

A few weeks ago the young man had two hemorrhages and the physician stated that he could not survive another, and last night the third and fatal hemorrhage came.

Young Gorky was about 20 years of age. He had been a pupil of the Indian school two years and was a very popular boy among his companions and was held in high favor by the officials and teachers of the school. He was a bright youth, possessing many admirable qualities. His death has caused much sorrow at the school.

The funeral services were held in the chapel of the school this afternoon, conducted by Rev. F. F. Walters of the Christian church. The interment took place in the Indian school cemetery.
